

Anne Blumer
SolutionsForYou, Inc.
Certified Professional Organizer
Author and Speaker

When human beings experience trauma or have mental health or neurological challenges, it is not uncommon for their life to unravel and their environment becomes disorganized. Anne's great passion is bringing organizing and productivity solutions that work for an individual's organizing challenges through hands-on work or coaching. She helps her clients, who include adults and families, find organizing solutions and systems that support their way of thinking and processing, and create a functional environment where they can thrive.

The approach Anne takes working with clients is to reduce the anxiety and overwhelm caused by their disorganized environment, build a trustworthy relationship, and to have fun in the process.

When not working with clients, Anne enjoys speaking on the subject of organizing to a variety of individuals and organizations.

Anne's Speaking Style

Anne's passion for wanting her clients to live their lives on purpose and not consumed by the chaos clutter brings to their space and thoughts comes through clearly in her speaking on the subject of organization. Her delivery is professional, sprinkled with bits of humor, story-telling, and encouragement that her audiences declare "engaging."
